Who am I?

I started playing World of Warcraft back in December 26, 2006 as I discovered that Blizzard was offering 10-day free trials. All I needed was a credit card; I snapped one from my Mom and availed of the trial. Before the trial ended, I was already a paying customer.

Now $15/month is chump change but I find that after months of playing, the bills start to pile up! In one year I had accumulated $180 in credit card bills from WoW alone.

So I decided to look for ways to earn some extra cash without having to work longer. I wanted something automated or earn something while I spend my nights hacking through Burning Crusade content.

I came out with a post, click here, I received a lot of negative comments because it was indeed gold selling. And I've tried it before and got a lot of flak for doing it. I did it for 3-4 months that's at least $50 "saved".

When Blizzard made it easier to get gold from the game, the market for gold selling got saturated and prices of gold in real US $$$ went down. I discontinued doing it because: i) it was impractical (how about $20 for 1000 gold??) and ii) players hated gold selling and I didn't want to promote it anymore.

So I searched the net for ways to make some automated $15/month (at least, maybe more if you spend a lot of time on it) and I'll share to you what worked for me so far using minimal work and you can do it with your computer also.

Method #1: Paid Online Surveys

One of the easiest ways to earn your $15/month is by answering surveys. Please note that this is only available for US and Canada citizens. If you have a US address though, that shouldn't be a problem.

The principle behind getting paid for filling out marketing surveys is that big corporations such as Coca-Cola are continuously gathering data from consumers (that's us). In order to save on costs they course the surveys online and the pay a small fee to the person answering the survey questions. That small fee is directly credited to you.

Since, I'm a lazy retard; I only answer a couple of surveys a week, which should give me close to $100 every 1-2 months. Not bad, considering $100 is already 6 months of uninterrupted World of Warcraft play!

There are only 2 survey sites which I tried. Note that you'll have to enter a one-time membership fee in order to start receiving surveys (unlimited) to answer I have outlined some notes below in the table:

[click on the survey site name to check it out]

Survey Site	One-time Membership Fee	What they pay you per survey (avg.)	Number of Surveys to Cover one-time membership Costs	Promo Code	Membership Fee After Promo Code
Make Money Taking Surveys	$74	$10 to $40	2 to 7 filled out surveys	50% Discount if you enter the Promo Code	$37
Paid Surveys	$69	$5 to $75	1 to 14 filled out surveys	50% Discount if you enter the Promo Code	$34

I haven't personally tried participating in focused group discussions but I heard it pays a lot more on a per hour basis than answering surveys online. Still answering surveys is what works for me since I only have to log on and answer some questions then I get credited with a nice chunk of change.

Method #2: Sell Stuff on Ebay

Who hasn't heard of Ebay? If you haven't then you should register to become a qualified seller. In Ebay you can pretty much sell anything you want from used cellphones, Nintendo Wiis (hot item!), antique baseball cards. There's most likely a market for that in Ebay!

Sell a $100 item, or sell a used chair for $15, in Ebay there's just plenty of things to sell in order to make some extra cash. I sold my old iPhone when the second generation iPhone came out and I had a buyer in less than a week.

Of course you need to use the number one online merchant tool online, Paypal. Click here to join Paypal to securely facilitate payments of buyers to you.

Note: If you're selling something, make sure you deliver it on time and make sure the item you deliver is something which you described. People will give you a low rating in Ebay if you try to cheat them and they can file complaints against you.

Method #3: Monetize Your own website

If you have an existing website, you can start making money automatically by placing what they call affiliate links, private ads, and adsense on your site. Let me just outline how each of the three works:

Affiliate Links – You can be an affiliate of so many products on the internet, just check out Clickbank, Commission Junction, and many more. A good place to find affiliate programs for products is by typing “product name + affiliate” without the quotes in Google. Once you’ve joined the affiliate program, you’ll be getting special links which you can put in your website. If a visitor clicks that special link on your site and buys the product/service, you get a commission.

Why this is great: If your website is already receiving a good number of visitors, you can just put the special links in and wait for commissions to fall in place. Some affiliate programs offer commissions of more than $15 per sale on Clickbank so make sure to check that out.

Some Great Guides for you to start making money with your website:

Disclosure: Some of these guides cost around $20 to as much as $97 I have also listed free links to other sources

Free

The following are just some blogs which will give you more information on making money online:

Doshdosh.com
Shoemoney.com
Zacjohnson.com

Paid

The following lists some of the best guides out there which contains specific step by step instructions (for the lazy) but these will cost you although if you follow the steps correctly, it shouldn't be a problem because you'll probably recover your cost with just 2 affiliate sales. You shouldn't have trouble making money with your website using these guides.

Notes: The sales pages of these products promise to make you thousands of dollars...while this is achievable if you stick to the systems for a long time, you can be assured of generating more than $15/month within weeks of following the systems outlined in these guides.

eBay Software

Remember that you can sell stuff on eBay to earn around $15/month? Well what if you don't have anything to sell anymore?

Here's the answer to that; you can actually create a website and sell stuff on ebay which you do not own. The way to earn is via being an affiliate partner of eBay. There's special software that will do the website for you automatically; all you have to do is to tell the software which kinds of products you want to sell. Pretty neat huh?

Check out the software here (note: it's a bit pricey but there's a great upside to this one if used properly). I personally know of one website that's selling used iPhones through this software and is making a killing since commissions on iPhones are fat.

Method #4: Freelancing Services

If you have special talent for writing, graphics design, webpage design, website building, programming, etc. Then you can work a little extra from the comfort of your home and do some freelancing work for people who need them. There's a plethora of freelancing jobs to choose from. Click any of the following websites and then join as a freelancer. The pay for freelancing jobs range from as low as $5 to over a $1000. You can pick a freelancing job that pays $200 and that'll basically pay for a year's worth of World of Warcraft play.

Just to give you a sampler of what jobs are available here's a screenshot of the marketplace as of December 9, 2008:

Power tip: Look for projects that require data entry...this is probably the EASIEST thing to do and pays around $10.00 (such as the one above).

Method #5: Use In-game Rewards

Blizzard actually rewards its members with a free month in World of Warcraft via its very own refer-a-friend program. You can refer up to 5 of your friends to try out the game, should they decide to become a paying customer, you get a free month of wow worth $15. What you can do is to send your friends an email and tell them that it's a special free trial key which you got from Blizzard and would like to share with them.

I have used this myself and put an offer to get the keys on my website. Check out the requests for the key in the comments section of this post. I convert new users at an average of 2-3 every 3 months.
